Highlights

- Equal jump heights did not imply similar force–time curves in 805 football jumps
- Four components explained 74.8% of variance, located mainly in the landing
- Vendor metrics, age and body mass explained only 2.7–13.1% of each component
- Curve-shape differences arose mostly within athletes, not between them
- Landings already recorded in every test hold information take-off metrics miss